CITY AND DISTRICT. THE IRISH CAUSE.

Members of the National League Dis cuss the Elections in England-What is Being Done Here to Support Parnell and His Associates. The Robert Emmet branch of the Irish Na tional league held a special meeting last evening at the hall, corner of 41/2 street and Pennsylvania avenue, for the purpose of exchanging views on the result of the elections in England and Ireland. The president, Mr. Daniel Grady, said that when this meeting was appointed it was expected that the result of the English elections would be known, but he now learned that definite results would not be known until Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. Enough, however, was known to lead to the belief that Salisbury and not Gladstone would be at the head of the government, and that Parnell and his party would hold the balance of power in the next parliament. It was certain that either party would have but a slight majority, and while it was possible that Gladstone might unite the liberals and tories it could only be possible on Irish questions pure and simple. It a just measure of home rule is not granted to Ireland, Parnell and the national party could trem the dominant in the demiand the national party could turn the domi-nant party out of power, as they did with the liberals in the last parliament. GETTING NEW MEMBERS.

Before proceeding with the discussion the secretary of the branch, Mr. Killeen, reported a list of new members, and stated that the membership new numbered 62 and stated that the membership new numbered 62 and stated that the membership new numbered 62 and stated that the membership new numbered 63 and stated that the membership new numbered 63 and stated that the membership new numbered 63 and stated that the membership new numbership new numbershi bership now numbered fifty-five, and as the organization was but a week old, it was thought | The commissioner says efforts should be that this was a very gratifying growth. A motion was offered thanking Mr. Killeen for the zeal and energy he had displayed in securing so many members. Mr. Killeen deprecated such a resolution and sold that he had only and the solution of the forests. Ireland and the efforts made in her behalf. On 4 per cent of the woodland area of the country, the other hand, nine out of every ten of the Americans and Germans as soon as asked became members and offered to contribute money liberally. They seemed to sympathize with Ireland and the Irish people. A large majority of the names secured were not of Irish birth. He There has been an unparalleled increase dursaid that he thought in another week he could secure the names of fifty additional members, sale of various compounds of animal fats, vegeand he said that if there was any resolution of thanks it could be offered then. In spite of his protest the resolution was adopted and the sector, threatening the destruction of the legitiretary was informed that another would be mate dairy business. It is not competition ready for him at the next meeting. This preliminary business having been disposed of, a dairy products, the adoption of misleading general interchange of views followed.

PARNELL'S ULTIMATE OBJECT. Capt. D. W. O'Toole was invited to address the meeting. He spoke of the great importance | sioner earnestly recommends the prompt pasof the Irish people in Ireland and in this coun- sage by Congress of a stringent law to prevent port to Mr. Parnell, who was representing the cause of the country in an able and patriotic manner. He compared Parnell to Washing-ton. While Parnell's object at present might be the amelioration of the condition of the Irish people, yet he believed that he had for his ultimate object a grander aim in view, and for this reason he should be heartily upheld. The speaker referred to the poverty of the Irish members of parliament and the necessity that existed of enabling them to maintain them-selves as men among men. They were devoting themselves to the cause of their country, which was the cause dear to the hearts of Irishmen in all quarters of the globe, and they therefore de-

THE PARNELL FUND. The president, Mr. Grady, in commenting upon this latter portion of Mr. O'Toole's remarks, said that recently a meeting was held at the Hoffman house, New York city, and $8,000 was subscribed for the national party, that $100,000 would be raised for the use of gave their hearty support. He remembered some years ago that he belonged to a Fenian branch in this city. He served with credit for several terms in the board of common council. When the war came on he retired to "Traping Castle," his birth place, where he lived until 1866, when he purchased Pleasant Prospect, near Collington, and spent his closing days there. Mr. Walker was regarded as an exemplary citizen and church member. When in this city, before the war, the police force being inadequate to rid the city of all bad characters, Mr. Walker was a leading spirit in an organization of citizens which did much to prevent disreputable people from settling in respectable neighborhoods. On October 13th, 1883, Mr. and Mrs. Walker celebrated at their home their silver wedding, at which were present their eight children—James T. Walker, Elizabeth J. Lester, Chas. H. Walker, John N. Walker, Samuel H. Walker, George Newton Walker, Alice A. Townshend and Edward Spedden Walker, with over thirty grand children and a great grand child.

LYING IN STATE. The Remains of the Late Vice President Viewed by Thousands-What Mr. Hen-

The casket in which the remains of Vice President Hendricks will be interred arrived mate friends were admitted to view the remains yesterday. The sculptor Parks took another cast of the face yesterday, obtaining a fine impression. The full list of pall-bearers is appended: Gov. Isaac P. Gray, ex-Goy. Albert G. Porter, the Hon. W. H. English, Judge W. A. Woods, Postmaster Aquilla Jones, Mr. Frederick Rand, Mr. David Macy and Mayor John L. McMaster.

THE BODY TAKEN TO THE COURT-HOUSE. Soldiers kept watch in front of the Hendricks residence all Saturday night. At 10:30 o'clock the local military companies, under command of Adjt. Gen. Koontz, and the governor's staff marched to the Hendricks residence. The hearse had preceded them. To it were attached four black horses, caparisoned in emblems of mourning, with black plumes nodding from their heads, at which stood uniformed soldiers. The hearse was covered with silken flags festooned with crape. Promptly at 11 o'clock the burial casket was placed in the hearse, and the procession moved toward the court-house. Under the rotunda, directly in the center of he building, stands

THE CATAFALQUE, very elaborate structure. The inclosed space about 12x15 feet, the approaches being by gentle inclines. In the center of it is the bier, raised about three feet from the floor and covered with broadcloth. The canopy of black silk and crape and silk flags is supported by four columns, wrapped with evergreen and crape. At the entrances and on all sides are plants, so that the structure seems to have been built in a beautiful conservatory, and the whole effect is striking and imposing. At 11:30 o'clock the casket was brought in. At the head and foot large broken columns, surmounted by white doves and sheaves of rosebuds, smilax, ferns, and carnations were piaced. Directly at the head of the coffin, a very elaborate offering, sent by Patrick Egan, president of the Irish Land League of America, was placed. On the coffin there was placed a beautiful floral pillow of roses and smilax, on which rests a broken gavel, the insignia of office, made of violets, and below this another pillow of white, with the letter "H" in blue immortelles in the cenadmitted to view the remains. More than 25,000 persons passed through the building during the afternoon. The doors were closed between 5 and 6 o'clock in the evening. At 9 o'clock the doors were again closed and the cor-ridors cleared as Mrs. Hendricks had named that hour as a time at which she desired to view the body of her husband as it lay in state. Mrs. Hendricks, Judge and Mrs. Holman, Hon. Jas. H. Rice, and Mrs. V. K. Hendricks came in a carriage, and were admitted by a private entrance. Mrs. Hendricks were deep mourning and a heavy crape veil. Her face showed evidence of weeping, but she bore herself with much composure, giving way to her emotions much composure, giving way to her emotions only once. She expressed surprise and gratifi-cation at the elaborateness of the drapery and floral display. After she had retired the doors were once more opened and the crowd allowed to go through until midnight.

An Indianapolis dispatch to the New York Sun says: Among physicians there has been considerable criticism of the medical treatment of the case, and several papers have openly charged that Mr. Hendricks was bled to death through the stupidity of his physician, simply because he had an acute pain in his stomach. These statements have doubtless arisen from a misapprehension of the facts of the treatment.
Dr. W. C. Thompson, the attending physician, makes the following statement:
"Mr. Hendricks was never in his life bled by me. To have bled him under the circumstances of his last illness would have indicated great recklessness. But I never thought of bleeding him. We were in the habit of putting dry cups on him, and, in obedience to his request, on Wednesday I cupped him. I suppose it is from this that the impression that I bled him gained such headway. Said Mr. Hendricks to me: 'If you don't give me an opiate you must put a dry cup on me.' It was a favorite remedy of his. This process is used as a counter action, and consists in expelling the air from a cup by burning alcohol in it, and, while the vacuum exists, to apply the glass to the portion of the body where it is desired to produce an effect. The full treatment in the case was very simple. In the first place we were not apprehensive of danger. I had no more idea that day that Mr. Hendricks would die than I had that you or I would. I have seen him twenty times a great deal worse than he was that day. He was hilly and we gave him warm water, with soda in it, to sweeten his stomach. As I said, the treatment was very simple, for we thought there was little the matter with him. A simple there was little the matter with him. A simple stimulating enema, castor oil and molasses, was used. He had complained of a painful fullness of the bowels, which was thus relieved by two gentle operations. He said he felt better, straightened up, and remarked, 'Now I will take a nice sleep.' These were his last words to me. I had declined before this to give him calomel, for I told him that he was preparing to go to Washington and that calomel would prostrate and reduce him. This seemed paring to go to Washington and that calomel would prostrate and reduce him. This seemed to meet with his approval, and so he willingly accepted the treatment as I have described "I think his death must have occurred as early as 4 o'clock on Wednesday, for it was only a little after that hour that Mr. Hendricks' ser-vant came to me with the announcement that the Vice President was dead. He died of brain disease. His trouble was always nervous. Paralysis took either the brain or the heart. It would require a post mortem to determine which, and I suggested to the family that one be held, but Mrs. Hendricks was unwilling."

Gen. Lee's Inaugural Ball.

RICHMOND NEW YEAR'S EVENING.

A dispatch from Richmond to the Baltimore American says: Mr. Charles L. Siegel, who has charge of the arrangements for the grand ball to be given when Gen. Lee is inaugurated, left for New York Sunday. The city democratic committee has turned over the details to a committee has turned over the details to a committee of leading citizens, who will be assisted further by a committee of ladies. The ball will be the largest affair of the kind ever given here, the plan contemplating the use of the large regimental armory and Sanger hall adjoining, two large buildings, which are to be connected by bridges. The Sanger building will be used as the banqueting hall. A liberal guarantee fund has already been subscribed by prominent men. PREPARATIONS FOR A BRILLIANT EVENT AT has already been subscribed by prominent men. A grand music stand is to be erected in the mid-dle of the ball-room floor. Richmond society is very much excited over the prospective ball. It is about the first of the kind since the days of he royal governors of Virginia. It takes place January 1st.

A Case of Injustice. To the Editor of THE EVENING STAR: For years we have been without any accommodation, i. e., mode of public conveyance, between Brightwood and Washington. We had one years ago, when a mail stage ran morning and evening. From time to time meetings have been held on the subject of railroads, omnibuses and other modes of conveyance, but none of them ever reached a focal point. Last summer (1885) a colored man, Cherry, living near Boundary and 8th streets northwest, not known to the people of Brightwood, conceived the idea of running an old wagon, used in the procession of the emancipation celebration. procession of the emancipation celebration, between the aforementioned points, a thing no one heretofore had backbone enough to attempt. Since that time he has run night and attempt. Since that time he has run night and day with his quasi stage, and has been a great accommodation to the public, and the citizens of Brightwood especially feel very grateful toward him. Being encouraged by the people, he set about fixing something better, and through his own ingenuity and labor he has constructed a right comfortable fix, in appearance something like a small car; but being a poor man, and it naturally taking quite a time to accumulate enough, his horses have been and are still of the same type as his first conveyance.

Now to the point: Twice last summer he was arrested, handcuffed and imprisoned on a charge of cruelty to animals, by some officious, out-of-work public officer (?), and on Saturday afternoon, 18th inst., he was served the same way. My idea of a public officer is one who way. My idea of a public officer is one who shall arrest vice and crime, and protect honesty, ingenuity and industry. Now, why is it that some of our officers seize the weak and leave unpunished the more wealthy, who break the law by fast and reckless driving, and why

FROZEN STIFF IN HIS LITTLE CRAFT.—The body of Warren S. Yates, son of president Yates, of the Nebraska national bank, Omaha, who was blown out into the sound in an open boat while duck shooting off Stony creek on Thanksgiving day, was recovered Saturday on the beach at Baiting Hollow, Long Island. His body was lying flat on the bottom of the boat, with his gun beside him coated with ice. His knees were drawn up close to his stomach and told a story of long suffering. Death had evidently resulted many hours before the boat drifted on the beach. How it is that the boat drifted about in the sound for nearly sixty hours, without being picked up or going to the bottom, puszles those who frequent the water. The waves had washed over the dead man and the body was tightly frozen to the bottom of the boat.

THE WALKERS OF "TOAPING" CASTLE-HOW died at his residence in Prince George's (Pleasgrandfather with two brothers having left their native land in the early part of the last century, a reward of five hundred pounds having been offered for each of their heads, because of their opposition to crowning the German elector as King George I. They settled at Toaping Castle (named after their stronghold in Scotland), about nine miles northeast of the capital. The land was patented to Mr. Walker's grandfather Isaac in 1754 and has since been in the family. The three ancestors served in the war of the revolution, and some years after the grand-uncies, Charles and Nathan, went west. OUR AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS.

Commissioner Colman Calls Attention to the Destruction of the Forests.

HE RECOMMENDS LEGISLATION AGAINST FRAU-DULENT BUTTER, Commissioner Colman, of the Department Agriculture, in his annual report, which he has submitted to the President, says that the year, which epened in gloom over the threatened destruction of the winter crops by frost, closes with bright prospects of abundance for man and beast, produced, too, at a cost which is not a burden to the producer, and to be sold at a price which is not a barrier to the poor consumer. addressed, as the Supreme Court has held that the war was only an uprising against the government, and that every citizen was entitled to protection from the conscription officers of the public enemies. It is to be hoped that few exconfederates will be foolish enough to be caught by this game. There is not the least probability in the world, hardly a possibility, that Congress will ever, even in the remote future, pass such a measure as that contemplated. There seems to be no desire now among true patriots, whichever side they fought on in the late war, to open the doors to claims of any kind. Up north the demand for pensions to all Union soldiers appears to come principally from political demagogues, camp followers and bounty jumpers. The ex-confederate soldiers do not ask for any relief from the general government, although those who are disabled gladly accept aid from the states in which they live.
